With over 35 years of experience, La Milanaise has become a leader in organic grain processing in Canada. Their reputation is based on superior quality organic products.

Thanks to this high-capacity, state-of-the-art plant, the company's capacity now reaches nearly 350 tons per day. With a complete team of engineers and technicians to support customers, their flours and manufacturing expertise are now recognized across the North American continent. The value chain business model allows farmers wishing to develop their organic grain production to plan their production several years in advance.
